

There are two reasonable interpretations of this problem, with different solutions:

I don't think that our football team will do well this year. This is because our star quarterback is injured, we lost one of our best offensive linemen, and we have a new coach who doesn't know the players.

- (1) Our football team won't do well this year.
- (2) Our star quarterback is injured.
- (3) We lost one of our best offensive linemen.
- (4) We have a new coach
- (5) Our coach doesn't know the players

OR

- (1) Our football team won't do well this year.
- (2) Our star quarterback is injured.
- (3) We lost one of our best offensive linemen.
- (4) We have a new coach who doesn't know the players.

